1. In Macao, [redacted] was a Communist-sponsored holiday for labor and business organizations and schools, and arches were constructed in the streets. However, in assembly halls and streets, anti-Communists changed the date to read "10 October", and put up posters inscribed "Down with MAO Tse-tung." 25X1C

2. The Governor of Macao refused several invitations from Communist leaders to attend the Assembly, basing his refusal on the grounds that there are no diplomatic relations between Portugal and the Chinese Communist Government. Furthermore, Macao authorities forbade the raising of the Soviet flag, which was called for in original Communist celebration plans. A five-star flag displayed on a truck driven by Communists was torn off by Portuguese soldiers.

3. On the night of 2 October, a special meeting was called by the Communists to discuss a protest to the Macao Government; although heated discussion took place, no action was decided upon.

This document is hereby regraded to CONFIDENTIAL in accordance with the letter of 16 October 1973 from the Director of Central Intelligence to the Archivist of the United States.
